The BETHEL OXFORD COUNTY CITIZEN

Volume LXXIV—Number 4

BETHEL, MAINE, THURSDAY, JANUARY 25, 1968

$3.75 a Year—10 Cents a Copy

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

The State Auditor was due Jan. 22 to audit the town records but as of the 24th had not appeared. Their schedule has evidently been upset for some reason.

There will be preliminary work on the 1968 budget Monday night at the Selectmen's meeting. There will be a need for increased appropriations in a few accounts to maintain the same services. The Winter Roads Account will have to be reviewed carefully. We are expending a sizable portion of the total appropriation on this account, still we are unable to stay within the budget in an average winter. This past year has been abnormal as far as expense is concerned due to the many storms in November and December. A decision must be made as to how much to increase the appropriation or how much to decrease the maintenance. If the latter method is used to balance the budget it will mean the use of less salt, as this is a large expenditure, another area in which service is reduced is snow removal within the built-up sections of the town.

LOCAL CHAMBER SEEKS SLIDES OF THIS SECTION

Anyone having 35mm color slides, suitable for duplication, are asked to contact Elwyn Dickey, president of the Greater Bethel Chamber of Commerce, before Feb. 9.

The slides are to be used in a project now being prepared to promote Maine as a four-season recreational area.

POINT TO PONDER

There are two kinds of discontent: the discontent that works and the discontent that wrings its hands. The first gets what it wants; the second loses what it has. There is no cure for the first but success; there is no cure for the second.

—Gordon Graham

OLDEST LOCAL STORE TO CHANGE HANDS

The close of business of Bryant's IGA Food Store on Saturday, Jan. 27, will mark the end of Bethel's oldest family-owned business. On that date Richard Bryant will sever his connection with the market.

Founded by his great grandfather, Chauncey Bryant, in 1876, the establishment has been successively controlled by William, Myron and Richard Bryant. Assuming control of the store in 1957, Richard continued the business at the corner of Main and High Street until 1964 when their new Main Street supermarket was opened in June.

Affiliated with I. G. A. since 1929, it is understood that the on premises management of the store will be in control of a Milliken-Tomlinson representative until the new proprietor assumes control about mid-February.

MESC NOTES INCREASE OF 98 IN APPLICATIONS FOR EMPLOYMENT REGISTERED

There were 2,711 new applications for employment registered with the Maine Employment Security Commission during December, an increase of 98 over the previous month.

Mainly due to a change in policy deferring the reporting of those applications taken from high school students, the December 1967 total was 782 below that for December 1966.

Local offices conducted a total of 907 counseling interviews and gave tests to 2,644 employment applicants during December. Agency referrals resulted in getting 1,287 persons placed in gainful employment.

Screening interviews were conducted for 256 applicants for training or re-training projects which were available under provisions of the Federal Manpower Development and Training Act. Tests were given to seven; counseling to 74; and 134 were referred to specific training courses. Thirty-three, completing courses, were placed in training-related jobs.

Thirty-four male Job Corps applicants were interviewed; and 30 were referred to training centers. Eleven Selective Service registrants were interviewed, one of whom received counseling.

1968 MAINE HIGHWAY MAP NOW AVAILABLE

The State Highway Commission is now distributing the official 1968 Maine highway map. This year 650,000 maps have been printed and are being sent to chambers of commerce, information bureaus, and to persons who have made advance requests for the new edition.

On the front cover of the colorful map is a photo of a lobsterman getting his traps ready to go into the water. The back cover photo shows a section of the award-winning Interstate highway between Augusta and Waterville.

A new feature of the 1968 edition is a group of large-scale strip maps of the state's principal express highways with all interchanges shown. Large-scale maps are also included to aid the motorist into and through Lewiston-Auburn, Waterville-Winslow, Bangor-Brewer, Portland, Biddeford-Saco, Augusta, Rumford-Mexico, and Kittery.

The map of Maine has been updated to include all route number and highway location changes. Primary highways are shown in red, the Maine Turnpike in green, other numbered highways in black, and other surfaced or all-weather roads in gray.

The location of highway picnic areas, state parks, forest lunch and camp grounds are all noted on the map. Much other useful information for the motorist is also included, such as the population range of cities and towns, highway information location and telephone numbers, and location of Maine information centers.

The 1968 map can be obtained by writing to the Maine State Highway Commission, Special Services Division, State House, Augusta, Maine 04330.

HUNTER SAFETY PROGRAM CITED BY FISH AND GAME DEPT.

Safety Co-ordinator John F. Marsh of the Maine Fish and Game Department, in a letter to hunting safety instructors, cited them for their work of training 3,000 young hunters this past year.

Marsh noted that the figure was a full thousand over the target of 2,000 new trained hunters.

He commended the volunteer instructors for the excellent job they have done over the years. In the seven years of the hunter safety program more than 15,000 youths have been trained in the techniques of safe hunting, and only 10 of that number have been involved in accidents.

Since the statistics show that people under 21 are involved in nearly half of all shooting acci-

GREENWOOD CITY

Mrs. Collette Morgan, Cor.

"Turn back, turn back, oh, time in thy flight." Don't remember the author but I did turn back in my diaries to Jan. 1944 and on up through the years to review temperatures and weather of this day. It is so warm and sunny here today that I wonder about other Jan. twentys. There was a variety with some days like today. Also read many other things recorded in regard to school, the "kids", and events. It was rather interesting to review what was done in one's younger years.

One night this week just at midnight we awoke to a tap, tap, at the bedroom window—no, it wasn't the Raven—but it was the dripping of water on the window sill. Ice had built up on the roof, and too much while we were waiting for that Jan. thaw to remove it. Just got that looked after and returned for sleep when I noticed that the refrigerator was trying hard to do its duty but never quite made it. On investigating sure enough it had "gone out". So the perishables were removed to cooler places—no trouble finding some!

A day's work took care of the ice and an evening's work, the refrigerator.

The power was off Monday morning for a couple of hours, so our kerosene lamp was again in use. For a time I wondered if there would be school for no power, no heat. Seldom do our line men fail us. They were prompt again in remedying the difficulty.

Mrs. Milton Inman, West Paris, was a caller at Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Morgan's, Sunday afternoon. She also called on Mrs. Doris Hayes on Wednesday afternoon with flowers and other gifts from pupils and friends at West Paris.

OXFORD COUNTY ENDS 1967 WITH $11,000 SURPLUS

Tight spending over the last three months of 1967 and a couple of healthy balances combined to give Oxford County a yearend surplus, according to figures released Monday by County Treasurer Armand J. Fortier of Rumford.

"It was much better than most people expected," Fortier commented. The final outcome saw balances of $50,151 wipe out overdrafts of $39,124 to leave an approximate $11,000 surplus.

But if it had not been for the district court system and plenty of business in the Eastern office of the county registry of deeds, red ink would have dominated the ledgers.

The county got $25,100 from the state as its share of the annual district court revenues. This compares to only $1,231 spent by the county on the same court.

The second biggest money-maker was the Eastern registry which tossed back $14,867. The registry operated within its $8,000 budget, spending $7,460.

The Western Registry of Deeds contributed another $4,108 toward the balance sheet, along with $2,344 which came from probate court and $1,029 which was left over from the county's Economic Opportunity Fund. The anti poverty office spent only $570 of its county appropriations of $2,200.

Some $1,200 budgeted for two accounts went unspent. These were for bonding county officers and surveyors fees.

The clerk of courts office had a balance of $614. Five other accounts showed balances ranging from $461.90 down to $3.28.

On the other hand, nine accounts showed deficits of $1,000 or more.

The County's controversial Office of Economic Development again paced the heavy spenders. The office went $7,492 over its $20,000 appropriation.

Fortier said the indebtedness in the department resulted from spending in the first part of 1967 when the office worked with two men on its payroll. One of the men, former assistant Director Alfred Wallen of South Paris, was later discharged by the county commission. He is suing the county for $16,000, charging a breach of a four-year contract.

Fortier said the development office stayed within its $5,000 quarterly range during the final three months of last year.

The county buildings account was hit for $28,068.70, even though it had only a $22,000 budget. While $23,000 was appropriated for support of prisoners, the county spent $3,030 over that figure. And superior court costs far exceeded expectations.

The county appropriated $23,000 for the three superior sessions but wound up paying out $23,521. While county officials admit the budget figure was unrealistic, the court also went through a lengthy May session which ultimately ended in July.

The deficit was cut by some $5,687 worth of income which the

CLARK - EMENS

Miss Patricia Emens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allyn Emens of Andover, became the bride of Richard Douglas Clark at a ceremony on January 21st at the Maine Christian Association Chapel at Orono. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Roger Burke, 411 East Avenue, Lewiston.

The bride is a graduate of Andover High School and is a sophomore at the University of Maine.

Mr. Clark, a graduate of Edward Little High School, will graduate from the University of Maine in June.

court brought in, leaving a final overdraft of $4,834.

The payroll for the clerk hire account exceeded the budget by $3,020, with a total of $30,000 having been budgeted. Another area which missed its estimate handily was the county retirement system. While $13,000 was appropriated for this category, some $20,724 was spent. The account came closer to being balanced, however, by some $6,569 which it earned. The final deficit was $2,155.

Two accounts drawn on heavily because of tragedy in the county reflected as much in the year end financial picture.

The county attorney's account hit $51,117, even though only $2,500 was set aside. Reasons cited for the overdraft was the investigation of a fire at Oxford last summer which killed eight people; a murder investigation last fall, and part of the expense for investigating charges leveled at former Sheriff Lester C. Horton.

County Attorney David Aldrich estimated last fall the expenses for the Oxford fire investigation ate up nearly his entire budget.

The expenses for county medical examiners, $587 above the $1,500 appropriated, was likewise related to factors beyond the control of budget makers.

Fortier credited Sheriff W. Stanley Haskell, with close budgeting over the final four months of the year to hold his departmental deficit to $2,837 above the $60,000 appropriation.

"He deserves a pat on the back," Fortier said. Haskell took over as sheriff after Horton resigned to take a mail carrier's job.

"We thought that the deficit might be six or eight thousand dollars over the budget," Fortier said, "but during the last three months, he (Haskell) kept his spending down to around $4,000 a month."

Haskell reported last fall he was adopting a number of economy moves in his department.

Other deficits included the county commissioners account, which was $1,663 more than the $1,200 budgeted; civil defense, $975 over its $4,500 budget; the bridge account, $745 over the $40,000 appropriations.

Finally, postage was completely overspent. The account came to $900 for 1967. Absolutely nothing was appropriated.
